

Dreams

Concept

This concept literally interprets “dreams” as the dreams we see in our sleep. Dreams act as a respite from the real world for a lot of people and as a result, has been used popularly as a literary device by authors. For this concept, I want to create this sort of dreamy atmosphere that references famous dream sequences in literary fiction. Some examples I could use are Alice In Wonderland, various novels of Haruki Murakami, Dickens’ A Christmas Carol, etc.

Trains

Concept

For this concept, I wanted to create something meditative and quiet. Empty trains and looking out the window is something that I instantly relate to introspection and has a meditative quality for me. This is why I want to make a side scrolling webpage that recreates the experience of sitting in an empty train and looking out of the window.

Calm

Concept

I would want to create a website which serves as a calming break from the anxieties and stress of daily life. This website would serve as a quiet space where the user can spend some time in order to feel refreshed and peaceful. Since we are nearing the end of the semester, all I can think about is finding some quiet time for myself after school ends, which is what inspired this concept. It was also inspired by thequietplaceproject.com
